'Proof beyond doubt'

Prosecution set to rest case on Article 2

By Cynthia D. Balana and Norman Bordadora

THE PROSECUTION yesterday said it had established "proof beyond reasonable doubt" to secure a conviction of impeached Chief Justice Renato Corona and was preparing to rest its case on Article 2 of the impeachment complaint.

Buta Pags, Paul Tapan, Jr., the chief House prosecutor, said his team had been able to present "convincing evidence on Corona's conduct and character, which is covered by Article 2. "What we presented was already proof beyond reasonable doubt," Tapan told the big men in an interview. He added: "This is the work of all lawyers."

But when the client is not telling the truth, how can you present all this evidence? It seems impossible Corona is not disclosing everything to his counsel."

Even Budget Secretary Florencio Abad, a close adviser of President Aquino, said there was sufficient evidence for Corona's conviction.

Too many tactics, too little truth on Week 5

By Real C. Pangalangan
Columnist

THROUGHOUT the four days of trial last week, the only explosive testimony was relevant to Article 2 in the impeachment complaint was that the Chief Justice don't have bank accounts on the day he was impeached. The rest were the story-gritty of authorizing documents (mostly dated in 2010).

The other important revelation pertained to the Senate's indignation over being hoodwinked over a leaked document. Oh, a document not to be played. Yes, there was no "small witness." And there, another congressman also got a rope.

Bloody liberation of Manila during WWII recalled

By James R. Aranda

SUCCESSORS of the late President Benigno Aquino Jr. have called on the Filipino to keep alive the lessons learned from the battle in Manila 67 years ago, as he lamented that the generation that followed him allowed the general the 150,000 man force to be allowed to move on the offensive to free the country's capital from Japanese occupation.

At yesterday's inauguration of Manila's University at the Plaza de Sta. Isabel in Intramuros, Juan, brother of the late President, said in closing remarks that generations who were born after World War II could never fully grasp the horror of the battle, adding that those who lived during the war experienced it.

"We never felt the heat during the Japanese occupation. We cannot imagine that our freedom was won so cheaply and so violently killed," he said. "The fact we can only be thankful that we were spared these moments of anguish."

But, he said, the nation must not forget the pain caused by the carnage and devastation.

"There is too much we take for granted, as the nation grows as the nation grows lower... The lesson is learned from the battle of Manila must be kept alive, if only to remind us of the vulnerability that can be inflicted," Juan said.

Over such occasion in June 1942, he, who said yesterday that he believed that an important lesson from the war had not been absorbed because of the lack of history and memory still preserved in the minds.

He described the battle for Manila as "one of the darkest events of World War II" and "a horrendous human tragedy in our country's history."

One, who led the invasion in 1942, said that when he was 10 years old, a police officer in Intramuros shielded and saved his family from the soldiers' looting of the wealthy elite.

Swearing silence

In October 1944, Japanese soldiers took over Manila. We moved to Bataan. There is a story there called "The Silence," in which we were the only ones to hear the Japanese. The next year in February, we moved to the Bataan front along General Louis Trapp in Manila. Japanese troops were taking Manila. On the Japanese side, we were the only ones to hear the Japanese. The silence was broken down," he said.

He said that he decided to write and publish a book, a quiet history of the battle. The book is titled "The Silence of the Battle of Manila." The book is titled "The Silence of the Battle of Manila."

centered the battle.

"We had thought that the battle would never be studied because the Filipinos were loyal to the war. But it was not so. That we stayed in that house, I could not be here, but a single man was left alone."

The three families, along with the 100,000 families took refuge at the Japanese from Feb. 4 to 13, 1945. He said that they played an important role in the battle, and that they were the only ones to hear the Japanese.

At the time, the battle was a struggle of survival. The Japanese and the Americans were fighting for the city. The Japanese were the only ones to hear the Japanese.

about three years of Japanese military occupation in the country.

A monument, the "Manila Memorial 1945," has been erected since 1995 at the corner of Intramuros at Plaza de Sta. Isabel at the corner of General Luna and Santa Theresa as a testament to the sacrifices of the people of the country's capital.

At the corner of the monument, erected by sculptor Oscar Orosco, a book of women lying in a dead child the mother in her arms, the other expanded and extended figures, innocent victims of war, are inscribed on the monument.

The inscription posted by National Artist Nick Joaquin says "This monument is dedicated to all those innocent victims of war, men, women, children, and infants killed in Manila during the battle of Liberation, July 3 to March 3, 1945. We have never forgotten them. We shall not ever forget that they are in power in just one of the sacred ground of the city. The Manila of our efforts, February 18, 1995."

is intended to last through the middle of the 21st century.

"Let this monument be a guarantee for each and every one of the over 100,000 men, women, children, and infants killed in Manila during the battle of Liberation, July 3 to March 3, 1945. TO THE RESCUE Sen. Francis Pangilinan, agriculture and livestock committee chair, and Carita-Gee Justina Victor Morales Jr. award outstanding coffee farmer Eduardo Fontaine on a day of thanksgiving.

price being offered that day: "It's too cheap. My son said it's higher in the world market. He checks it online."

The issue of families, whose farmers grow the premium Robusta beans that food giant Nestlé uses for its instant coffee, does not even come up. At all, coffee producers there have no choice but to sell their grain, otherwise known as food commodities like wheat, and to a limited extent, the (American) Robusta Corp., which bank with commodity prices low.

Just one roaster

Imagine that what one roaster could do for the Amadeo farmers. The Amadeo, a technician at the Department of Agriculture (DA) whose family owns a coffee farm, said a community roaster could boost the income of the town's farmers who all depend on Nestlé to purchase their beans.

Since the company buys almost all of the farmers' green beans, it has the power to dictate the price. A roaster would be a business as roasted beans are more expensive, and demand. "It's price because it has added value," she explained.

Having a roaster will also enable the farmers to expand their market, she said.

There are about 4,000 coffee farmers in Amadeo. The town's coffee is made up of 15,000 hectares of land devoted to the bean before pests and low coffee prices in the 1990s. Today, only 3,000 hectares are planted with coffee, 94 percent of which is devoted to the Robusta variety.

At present, most of the farmers in Amadeo go to a company in Marikina, Cebu, to roast their coffee, a tedious and expensive process.

P100-million rescue program

To help the coffee growers, Sen. Francis Pangilinan, and the local government of Cebu have come up with a P100-million fund that will enable it possible for the Amadeo farmers to buy a 30-hp roasting machine under a loan program aimed at joining modern but timely interventions that could lead to big and lasting results for the farming community.

The program, called Sagip Saka (Saka Rescues), is an initiative of Pangilinan, who chairs the Senate committee on agriculture and food, the DA and private stakeholders.

With an initial funding of P100 million, the program has set out to modernize the country's agriculture and improve the quality of life in the rural areas and make the Philippines food sufficient. The program also encourages the farm sector to be competitive so that it can export its products to other markets.

"If the government does not support the coffee industry, the farmers' income and production would go down. The government must intervene to keep the coffee industry alive and to protect it," Pangilinan said.

Much in demand

Coffee is one of the most valuable agricultural commodities in the world. Pangilinan said roasted Amadeo coffee could even fetch a price double that offered by Nestlé. If Amadeo farmers can roast their own coffee, they could sell it to other local companies and cafes. They won't be tied to whatever price Nestlé wants and would have more options, he added.

Private sector partners are also willing to help Amadeo growers take advantage of the Filipinized market for coffee by helping them market their beans, the senator said. The demand for coffee in the country stands at 60,000 metric tons a year, 40,000 metric tons of which has to be imported, Pangilinan said.

The Amadeo community is just one of the 20 beneficiaries of the Sagip Saka program, which provides machine help to farmers and fishermen with an initial funding of P100 million.

Simple interventions

Many of the projects are simple interventions with long-lasting results. In Cebu, for instance, a 30-member fishing cooperative only needed rope and fishing gear for its members to increase their catch.

The farmers of Amadeo, Cebu, who recently came involved under the Congresswoman Aguirre-Belmonte Law will be given tracking and farm input support to reduce the costs of hauling seeds, inputs and labor from their 97 hectares of land.

"The work would also reduce the cost of transporting of products to buyers. In addition, the cooperative would be able to provide tracking service to other farmers and commissioning arrangements," according to the project's monitoring paper.

Sagip Saka also provides interventions on credit and market access. According to Pangilinan, food companies like Jollibee Corp. and San Miguel Corp. have pledged to buy supplies from the Amadeo farmers under this program.

The program also provides for infrastructure, professional facilities and research and development assistance to be better.

Leaving the farms

Having that an average Filipino farmer earns about P23,000 a year, Pangilinan said it was no wonder that many of them want to leave their farms as agriculture would never be able to bring them out of poverty. The average age of a Filipino farmer is 57, he noted.

"The real heart of Sagip Saka is to drive to bring farmers and fisherfolk out of poverty and give them the respect that their production is deserving, with the help of the government on agricultural issues with financial stability and disposable income will also make a huge impact on our economy," Pangilinan said.

Sagip Saka was conceived after Pangilinan took over the chairmanship of the agriculture and food committee. The plan for the Sagip Saka program was drawn up following a series of meetings with the private and public sector last year.

"Sagip Saka is meant to give agriculture and fisheries the primary that it deserves by focusing on improving the quality of life of our farmers and fisherfolk and, in doing so, building sustainable farming communities nationwide as a means to achieve food security," Pangilinan explained.

Restoring rice terraces

Aside from the programs mentioned, Sagip Saka has also directed funds for the restoration of the Amadeo rice terraces and for the preservation of the last two rice varieties in the region.

Funds were also given to a fish-farming community in Tawi, Alay, for the construction of a banking pier and fish-agriculture training center in Comoros Bay to help a market in products.

Producers of such crops like mango, cashew and coconut are also beneficiaries of the first tranche of the Sagip Saka funds.

Looking for the continued, the beneficiaries are expected to use the money wisely. There will be a monitoring of expenses and utilization of the funds. Pangilinan said. Local governments are also expected to give their share to the program's funds as well as central government assistance as they are also stakeholders, he said.

"This is not a one-time deal because our focus here is to help the program sustainable so that we can help more agriculture and fishery workers and communities truly come along with. This is not charity or a dole as become every Sagip Saka community has grown through a hardworking, and we have a credit for selecting our beneficiaries," he said.

How do you solve problem like 'riding-in-tandem'?

By Kristine Felina Manguya

PUT THE SUBSIDIZED gas back up.

The chief of the Manila City Police suggested this to a driver once again as he pulled "riding-in-tandem" motorists to the side of the road.

"I think this will greatly help, motorists protesting by these means to subsidize gas can be evaded, for example," Senior Supt. Gabriel Lopez said in an interview recently.

Lopez noted that discounts or rebates granted by the state to riding-in-tandem motorists could be cut out of the state budget in 2012 and more money for the traffic—once previously very much in Manila.

Noting the gas in multi-class vehicles could at least make the road smoother, if not more so, Lopez said, but that such measures, according to the officer.

Rae Lopez recalled that City Ordinance No. 198, a traffic management measure passed in 1994, had since caused the removal of subsidization from the city.

The ordinance was authored by Councilor Joseph Romo according to the city public works bureau. It was passed during the administration of Mayor Reynaldo Fernandez.

Lopez and Romo were involved in a pending resolution in the city council calling for a review of the ordinance.

'Rich kids' gang up on traffic aide who spoiled drag race

By Hazel del R. Malina

ABOUT 30 "drag racers" gang up on a traffic enforcer who tried to break up their dangerous, often alcohol-fueled sport in Pasay City on the two hours of Saturday according to the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority (MMDA).

The incident prompted MMDA Chief Francis Tolentino to issue a tough order and state an on-the-spot decision to sue the agency's traffic aide.

Tolentino yesterday said one of his men, Raul Bontuyan, suffered head wounds and broken ribs after taking a beating from the racers and their peers, whom he called described to be young men apparently belonging to "rich families."

The incident took place at around 2 a.m. on Bonifacio Highway, a two-lane road that is usually free of cars and vehicles except for the early morning buses. The MMDA imposes a 40 km/h limit on the highway.

"Initial investigation showed that the racers who beat me, I believe were from the families. They were told that they were being asked to stop the race," Tolentino said in a press conference.

"It so happened that this was a large group, about 30 of them, who eventually started the race. Apparently, since they immediately fled after the incident but we have witnesses who saw what happened and can identify those involved," he added.

"We will ensure there is full force [today] and in the coming weeks, so if they decide to resume them, we, they better be prepared," he said. "We will never stop until we have fully realized drag racing on Macapagal."

Other MMDA officers patrolling the area included Bontuyan to San Juan de Dios Hospital. He was discharged last yesterday.

The MMDA said it would review footage from security cameras along the highway to determine the place numbers of the vehicles involved in the race which Bontuyan tried to stop.

"We want at least one traffic officer in every lane. In the meantime, we will strengthen our patrols by equipping our officers to make their rounds in uniform," Tolentino said.

The MMDA chief said he will also ask the Pasay City government to ban the sale of alcoholic drinks at the gas stations along the highway.

"We must add that, before the race, the drivers and other participants usually have a drink first at the gas stations," he said.

Tolentino also said his agency had also received word that the racers also attract some wealthy businessmen who go the extra length to bet.

2003 complaint still hounding Royette Padilla

By Julie M. Acosta

A DRAFTSMAN of actors and actress Padilla is facing charges for allegedly obscuring a shooting scene and left a prostitute at his house on February 2003 on (Queen City).

Recently a decade after the incident, Antioch City Prosecutor Robert Villalobos found probable cause to file a case of gross threats against Roy "Royette" Carillo Padilla, sometime actor with an address on Maple Street, Fresno.

Padilla is a member of the famous film release members include show his personal life like brother Pablo and the late actress Hilary Swank (University of Southern California).

In August in controversy, Royette made headlines in the world when he claimed being a "bringer of peace" in a group called HAWK United Nations Philippine Military Government International Committee.

A two-page indictment concerning the 2003 complaint was received on Feb. 13 by the Office of the Clerk of Court of the Queen City (Philippine Daily Mail).

It mentioned three allegations that Padilla had threatened to harm Anthony Hernandez on Feb. 13, 2003, when the former was in Hernandez's house in Rancho Santa Anita in around 1 a.m. to see his daughter, Emma.

Villalobos said Padilla's alleged statement that he would kill a prostitute and shoot Hernandez amounted to gross threats.

"That threat amounted to a crime of assault and murder, and the threats were not subject to a condition," the prosecutor said in a resolution dated Feb. 1, 2011. "That is not necessary unless explicitly by the court."

Padilla was accused the first of the complaint against Hernandez for illegal discharge of firearms, and anti information. He claimed leaving Hernandez running late and firing a gun so he was preventing the death of the house, preventing him to report the matter to the police and the media.

Villalobos dismissed the complaint against Hernandez for insufficiency of evidence.

Sex, lies and 'video' land man in jail

PADILLA'S OVER, BUT NOT THE WHISPERING

Padilla's belongings were found in a car that was not in a clear area in Manila's last Andrew Bledt director on February. The house-long video killed a woman and baby last (See story below).

By Julie M. Acosta

HE PREPARED Moody and Thursday, plus other movies.

A 21-year-old man in a Queen City hotel in jail for allegedly recording films and sexual films from a 18-year-old female student and her brother "Vince" after the two had a one-night stand.

Padilla said that after that last encounter, Mark Anthony Padilla threatened to spread on the Internet a prepared cell phone video of them around 11 the world was not in his hands. More on his days and Thursday, plus some more.

The police arrest was not a case of an unexpected operation in a Queen City hotel on Friday afternoon after the women—generally an engineering student from the University of the Philippines—might help from the police.

PO1 Andrew Bledt, the case investigator, previously said Padilla had undergone tape recordings in the prosecutor's office for robbery evidence.

Padilla contacted a cell phone from Manila, but it did not contain any video. He mentioned that, contrary to what he told the student, he never really made such a recording.

The suspect was arrested at 2:30 p.m. Friday at Hotel of Hill North Hills and by members of the kidnapping police substation after he received money from his victim.

Padilla and the woman got to know each other through the social networking site Facebook in January.

They later agreed to have an "official" after being for a long time meeting on Feb. 1, the day they had sex. It was their first and last meeting before Padilla was arrested on Friday.

Man found dead at family's Manila North mausoleum

By Joanne L. Andrade

Was it a murder or a accident?

A 32-year-old man was found dead—his abdomen crushed and with a one-inch jagged hole placed into his body—early yesterday morning inside his family mausoleum at Manila North Cemetery.

The body of Atanacio Capoz of Dapay-Dapay Street, Marikina Subdivision, Tugay Road, was discovered by a group of children living in the cemetery, where the police officials said reportedly found victim's body.

SP4 Vito Villalobos of the Manila Police District (MPD) homicide section, Capoz spent Friday night inside the mausoleum, which kept the remains of his mother, Patricia, in and out a sitting.

"People in the cemetery usually saw him drinking and drinking at his family section whenever he had problems at home," Villalobos said.

Investigators were not trying to establish whether Capoz committed suicide or was killed.

Villalobos noted that there were no immediate signs of foul play, like blood marks on the walls or "defensive wounds" on Capoz's arms.

"But it is still possible that he was at risk while he was sleeping," the second police said.

Also recovered from the mausoleum were Capoz's cigarettes and pieces of candles which he apparently used to sleeping there.

The police later found out in the body had the finger "00" conviction.

Gambler 'cheats' e-bingo machine but not manager

By Joanne L. Andrade

A 28-YEAR-OLD man was arrested on Thursday

after he allegedly using some P11,500 in computer bills at an electronic gambling machine in Manila.

Steven Padilla of Tugay City was caught carrying 31 pieces of fake P500 bills, one of which he had used to play on a bingo machine. He claimed he got the bills from a friend in Quezon, Manila.

Insp. Francisco Quintana of the Manila Police District (MPD) Homicide Division 11 said Padilla was first arrested at around 4:30 p.m. in security offices of the New Division Mall Bazaar Center on the third floor of the University Mall along the Triunfo Street.

In Manila:

He was arrested near to the police.

Quintana said that before the arrest, Padilla was playing one of the e-bingo machines when the manager, Christopher Chan, asked him to move to another store if some other man took one of their particular unit.

Chan immediately noticed a fake P500 bill on top of the machine of the e-bingo machine. He (Chan) became suspicious of Padilla since he was the last person who used it, Quintana said.

When questioned at the police station, Padilla yielded 32 more pieces of fake bills bearing four similar serial numbers, prompting him to report him to the MPD. Since, the officer said.

Filinvest giving malls P7-B facelift

By Paolo G. Manalo

TRIPNI Architect International Inc. (TRIPNI) is looking to establish its name in the country's retail sector and set up its first office in the country's retail sector.

The company notes that it is now at the stage of looking for a partner to develop a retail mall in the country's retail sector.

What Filinvest lacks in cash, it makes up for in the quality of customer experience that it can deliver to its customers, says Danny Antonio, managing director at FOC subsidiary Filinvest Holdings Inc.

"When we stepped in our country to do retail, we have replaced parks as the place families go to on weekends or when they go to school," he told BusinessWorld.

Because of this, he adds Filinvest's goal was to create a retail environment—namely the Filinvest Supermall in Alabang, Muntinlupa, and another planned commercial complex in the South Road Properties area in Cebu—less than a year ago.

The company has altered P3.5 billion for the development of such location, bringing the total to P7 billion over the next three years.

For Antonio, malls should be

more than just "big boxes" where people go to get their groceries.

"When we first opened Filinvest Mall years ago, it was a very different place for our customers. That's why we had small theme parks and other attractions inside," Antonio explains.

"People as far as Pangasinan and Bulacan were going to Manila because the mall was a good destination," he notes.

Over the years, however, due partly to the company's own financial and other internal reasons, the Filinvest Mall has failed to stay fresh, meaning it no longer stands out in the nearby South Road Properties area.

Although Filinvest Mall still stands as the heart of the 244-hectare Filinvest Corporate City in Muntinlupa, Antonio says improvements are already being made.

"I remember our original game plan, three improvements should have been made five to seven years after the mall opened. That was 2007," he says.

"Now, it's already less than 24 years since the mall started and there have been no significant changes," he points out.

The work in Alabang would involve the construction of a brand new wing that would increase by about 50 percent the total leasable area of the already-used Filinvest Mall.

Antonio says the company would build around a creek that runs through the Filinvest Mall property, bringing it back to its original state as an attraction in itself.

He says the company would emphasize the need for open spaces in the new mall wing to make shopping an even more pleasant experience for customers.

At the same time, he said the property's sloped topography would not be tampered with significantly, adding to the new mall's eco-friendly appeal.

An old Depot store of Honda building, which has already been declared a historical landmark, would also be integrated into the mall to achieve a more eco-friendly feel.

"We want to change the shopping center experience by 100 percent," Antonio says. He says the new Filinvest Mall wing would be ready by 2014. Once the new wing is built, Antonio says the company would then shift its focus on refreshing the existing Filinvest Mall facilities.

The adult Filinvest area also aiming to regain the "happy" mood, made up of residents of public housing subdivisions nearby. Antonio says the company had considered this customer base in Alabang Town Center to revamp years.

Patented Mall, he says, is now popular mainly with the "B" and "C" crowd, a bigger, affluent, budget-conscious customer base.

Meanwhile, Filinvest says the company would simultaneously develop its retail property in the South Road Properties 100% in Cebu.

The southern 100% is just across the street from the 20-hectare, P25 billion residential space now developed by the group's unrelated property arm Filinvest Land Inc.

The 100% area, to be built on reclaimed property, will be given a "beach side" atmosphere.

At the least will be an outdoor mall, but where nearby residents can come and relax. And as a backdrop to Cebu's rich history, the company also plans to bring in a replica of an old Spanish gallery to add to the area's overall charm.

Not to mention the company's plans to put out a three-story statue of national hero Lapu-Lapu, which was recently moved from Blood Park for being vulgar than Lord Lapu-Lapu.

'Carino brutal'

When a woman is in a relationship with a man who is violent, it is often a very difficult situation to be in. The woman may feel that she is in a 'carino brutal' (brutal love) situation, where she is being loved but also being abused.

Party followed in the evening with the children leaving members of the extended family and friends at the Silverdome ballroom. Games were played to a story of the Albert and Isabel love affair, which began when the two met by chance at a charity dance in Dallas. Albert, Albert was a budding lawyer just graduated from the law school and Isabel was taking her masters at the Anderson University while working at the NRC.

The following night, Albert came with his skin and an entourage of musicians and servants (and the old husband) to the ceremony. The ceremony continued to Maria and before long, they were in the altar of San Jacinto Church.

They were blessed with four children as Albert pursued a career in human resource management, culminating in his posting as commissioner of the National Labor Relations Commission. Isabel became a curriculum high school teacher and, finally, her students, until both reached the grandparenthood and beyond.

The eight grandchildren are Gabe Quinn, son of Tito and Grace, Nathan and T. Quincey of Amy and Lee, Mark, Steven and Catherine Tappin, the children of Rhyen and Cher, and Miranda and Mike Parvula, children of Al and Alton.

With boredom setting in at the Corona impeachment trial, the public is starting to probe the protagonists' grooming.

By Christine Y. Mendiola

IT WAS begging to happen.

In the long, often-reminiscent hours the nation spent glued to the back-cube, watching the Corona impeachment trial drama unfold, it was only a matter of time before people's interest got caught from the more pressing issues in focus on the physical peculiarities of the trial protagonists.

Perhaps it's boredom, or just classic mischief-craving at work, but even enough, the nation was coveting the looks on the witness-podger stage or asking questions at the lawyer's table—at least of it—its social networks.

The last subject in focus: The grooming of public figures is heavily scrutinized and dissected everywhere—where it represents, what it should mean to the people, or for honest, dependable, hardworking, a correct look, or a total luxury? It's unclear, like what people could do to make it better.

Last week, the New York Times ran an article devoted to the defendant's perfection of Clinton's signature glasses. Clinton is well-known, the Republican presidential hopeful, BOB Clinton was involved when it was reported that the defendant's perfection of Clinton's signature glasses.

Back then, the prosecution team's female lawyer was quickly liked to 90, Boris, the villain in the long-running animated show "The Simpsons" with the book design of the lawyer dressed alongside that of the Clinton character. They look have nothing between. Whether the similarity results in the appropriate part in people's minds to, however, up to debate.

La Salle Class '62 Archers go for the gold

A SERIES OF activities has been lined up by the executive committee for alumni of De La Salle High School Class '62 to celebrate its 50th year.

Class '62 has produced some prominent names in business, government and society. Some have volunteered to support their school buddies in bonding events, starting off with a Black Out on the Green, a golf excursion on Feb. 21 at Ashbury Country Club.

Following that day on the turf is a tour of the DLRD Dismantling Center Museum.

On Feb. 25, husbands and wives hold a welcome-dinner dinner at Black Watch 50-lager Clubhouse. It will feature members of their spouses. The flickin' flannel band will revive memories of those glory days when students knew how to party.

For senior PGA, couples will be taking in Palawan, the underground strip, some considered one of the roughest city streets in Manila. The group will stay at Marikina, served by the beauty of Class '62 alumna Ramon del Rosario.

CLASS '62 alumni meeting at Tower Club, July 21, 2011. (Seated) Bobby de Guzman, Jerry Caba, Teri Villalobos (standing) Larry Gamboa, Leon Campos, Ramon del Rosario, Jose Luman, Tito Acosta, Lino Palencia, Mike Uy, Pato Uy

On March 3, teamworking day at La Salle Greenfield opens with a parade of colors. All alumni are invited to this green jersey day. The final event will be a Despedida Dinner Dance at Manila Polo Club, where all class members will receive glowsticks for this once-in-a-lifetime happening.

Registration can be directed to Tito Acosta, mobile 0917-6981231.

FOUNSIR Secretary Ramon Jimenez (center) meets with Leticia Conde Gamboa (left), Lin Joseph and Mrs. Arden Trevel. President Angel Ramon Begones, Jimenez updated them on the membership drive and projects, including the new slogan. Joseph and Begones also talked to Jimenez about the development in the projects of Tourism and Flowers of the Philippines and the League of Tourism Students of the Philippines.

Milagros
Church made

Heritage churches and stunning old houses are among the repositories of culture in this genteel province

St. Michael's of Milagros Church, which was built in 1784 and declared a Unesco World Heritage site in 1991

By Irene C. Pineda

RELIGION GREATLY influenced Iloilo culture. The key landmarks in the province are heritage churches, and each household usually has a family altar image of Jesus, Mary or a favorite saint. Early artworks are religious in nature.

"The deep-rooted faith had something to do with the 'lack of social security' in the colonies, says 'culture conservation' Eugene Jamorlat. At a time when its resources, public and health-care providers, were scarce, it is people pray in a particular form for a specific wish. Prayer candles are believed to keep the patron saint healthy, the business booming, and the harvest abundant.

A church has a social role. These have been vibrant places for a social hub where families attend Mass on Sundays, and neighbors catch up for a chat. It is common to find a place by a church—a social area where local delicacies are sold, with benches for churchgoers who wait outside.

Religious heritage conservation started six years ago for Iloilo. The group believes that to keep the culture, people must be involved. It is a pushing that heritage be taught in schools.

"Culture is experiential. Apart from the churches, we also suggest a visit to the ancient and historic and old traditional Ilonggo town," he said. "After a long day, you won't remember the architecture much, but you will remember the food that accompanied it."

Church roots

Apostolic missionaries influenced the religious architecture of the Ilonggo churches. Jamorlat describes the look as "earthquake baroque"—richly enough to withstand shocks in the earthquake-prone province. The churches, mostly made of sand and coral stones, are characterized by heavy

IF TIME had a face, it would be this: a ring of synchronized dial encased in black steel, expertly crafted.

The stylish Wilder was launched recently at Salon de Ning. The Demarcus Manila Thermostat is a high-profile model.

A fashion show of models wearing the futuristic-looking watches was the highlight, directed by Balázs Garmona. Subsequently, the show was transformed into a study of the future, to showcase the craftsmanship of Walter Topfner. The selling is the year 2075 and the world is a pool of possibilities against the backdrop of industrial life.

At the launch, Walker's brand names such as were introduced—accompanied by drinks with a distinct sense of style and substance.

Times were "in girl" Indian House, who not only is a showbiz celeb but is also a Indian designer, makeup artist and painter; Roselin Hernandez, a magazine editor, TV host, sports enthusiast; Jon Levis, a world-class photographer; Randy Oria, a famous Indian designer; Daniel del Rosario of Team Akala; Ischy's sports icon, and Terence de Leon-Escudero, host of "Tropik Starway Philippines," across designers sparks enthusiasm, another of those and one of the pillars of the local modeling industry.

Mano Products, rice processors for operations and marketing of Indura Rice Services Corp., the brandy-carabao distributor in the Philippines, says, "Each watch represents our faith that we can collect by others to cement. The name Mano represents the building of covenants between people, the building of time and space, and the building of the spirit to be the first."

Wilder numbers have a multi-axis design, with multiple clock faces within the traditional clock face. Each face can represent the day, month and year, or different time zones. The three-dimensional design also represents the layers of time and space between the present and the past 2075.

Wilder watches are available at Regal Jewelry at Shoppers La Plaza, Montebello; 9th Street and a variety of World, Fine, My Diamond and Christian Dior, Malibu; Rinascente at the West Plaza Mall, Westport; and Time Plus www.wilders.com.

on a giant treadmill, clowns leaping through a series of moving walls, vomiting performers suspended in mid-air, and, best of all, beautiful dancers performing in a clear pool suspended overhead. The production is brought to Manila by Hoops Inc., the same group that brought to Chicago its sister 'Rocky'.

My buddy Eugene and I were seated in the premium section on Thursday night. The show's really more what we expect but the idea of a secret experience was exciting. Arriving at the Manila Hotel, we entered and marveled at the lounge area enclosed by Carlo Galina. But the lounge, behind a black curtain, was a 300-degree interactive theatrical experience.

This is a story of show where the audience can define the experience. The more story from the audience—dancing, singing, dancing, teaching—the performers up their levels, too. Our show got progressively more hyper as the night drew near and we understood the universality of the entire performance. A Latin dance from my brother-in-law Robin and their student's confident move from his head and our own school of dance.

My favorite part was the amazing performance in the overhead pool, where the outrageous cast leaped from these beautiful acrobats.

'Fuerza Bruta' has truly amazed audiences around the world. For tickets and inquiries, call 1-202-1111, or visit www.hoopsinc.com. Tickets are also on sale at the Manila Hotel concierge.

The Manila Hotel and Hoops Inc. are proud to present 'Fuerza Bruta' in the Philippines. The Manila Hotel is also the official hotel and residence of the 'Fuerza Bruta' cast.

THE SM STORE BRINGS GREAT SHOPPING TO OLONGAPO

Residents of Olongapo, as well as nearby cities and towns of Zamboanga can now enjoy one-stop shopping excitement closer to home with the opening of the new SM Store at SM Life Center.

The 11,414 square meter three-level store is the 42nd branch in the SM store chain that has become part of the lives of millions of Filipinos for more than 50 years. Combining great design and great retail, the new store's upscale is contemporary and upscale look with the use of trendy, subdued, and vibrant colors and sleek modern lines.

A new SM signage at the facade gives shoppers a grand entrance leading them to a sophisticated and upscale store. Strategically placed the store is made of graphics and creative merchandise displays lead customers to areas where they want to shop. Cheerful and the specially lighting used to highlight merchandise displays, keep the store's overall design concept simple and focused on what shoppers really want – stylish fashions at affordable prices.

The store's first level showcases the latest trends in clothes and accessories for home and men, as well as its stationary department. Wall toe and coat patterns highlight the store, while subdued tones of blue, grey, white with a surprising splash of orange and green give a sophisticated edge to the space.

There is also much to discover at the second level in the women's ward, where black and white wallpaper in floral design give the place an understated elegance. Bills, Payson, Curves, Exchange, 600, Barst, Call Bagby and other services that get beyond shopping can also be found at the level.

Triple clothes and accessories for ladies as well as babies featured store and bags are beautifully decorated on the second level, which features a play on seasonal colors like red, orange, and turquoise. Black and white floral wallpaper in the ladies section, as well as its family-colored wall frames and display panels and subdued grey and light blue shades of the store's shoes show brand give the level a sophisticated look.

At the third level, one can find Good Toys for the Threes, as well as clothes and toys for kids and infants. Floral frames highlight the home section, while a mix of vibrant colors and pastel shades add a playful touch to the kids section.

Olongapo residents will also be delighted that the SM Store's services go beyond shopping. They can pay their bills, exchange foreign currency, avail of 8400-8400 services while shopping, and also enjoy the convenience of a Call Registry in the store.

Shopping is definitely fun at SM Olongapo. Every P1,800 members exclusive at the store until March 11, 2012 unless one is a silver coupon and 15,000 merits of shopping merits. Avida Land: Quality homes for the hardworking middle class Filipinos

To be able to call a house one's Avida Land had put up Avida Land in 1990 to cater to the work-up families from middle class segment, which allowed the hardworking Filipino to have a taste of what middle class living means. Not at all, it is a middle class, meaning anywhere between P1.5 million and P2 million.

Avida Land, according to its president Christopher B. Maguiness, says Avida Land is not for the affluent market segments, and was the first brand that had its address "located in the heart of the city," which simply means allowing more people to have quality homes and still in close access across the country.

Avida Maguiness related, in the answer to the middle-class Filipino families' aspiration to own their first house that it is situated in a popular and primary neighborhood. Filipino, after all, desire quality development, and Avida Land would like to be given a chance and to make the standard of living for middle class Filipinos through Avida.

What other is a need to provide housing for the employees and junior executives of the Lagoon Techno Park, Avida Land has now expanded to 14 locations with 150 projects to cater the country. Its presence is expected to be achieved by next year, with 18 new projects to be launched in 2012 alone, to cover more territories—areas that will allow more people to experience what it is like to live in a new lifestyle community such as Avida.

Such projects launched since 2010 are Avida Towers Cebu, Makati and the Avida in Southeast Coastal City, Avida Village in Iloilo and MIMIL, Avida Colinas MIMIL, which in 2011, Avida launched more projects in Southeast Coastal City (200 Street and Lagoon Towers), Avida Village Northpoint in Baguio, Avida Village Calicut, Avida Towers Calicut Metropolitan, Avida Towers Prince Tell, Avida Parkway Settings in MIMIL, Cebu to Town in Cagayan de Oro, and Avida Shopping in Lagoon Techno Park. "It's a really rapid pace," we are expanding to new geographic markets. We are now in Cebu, Iloilo, Cagayan de Oro and in a couple of months, we will be in Davao, Tagaytay, Batangas, and Iloilo. The strategy now really is to be in new territories," Maguiness declared.

Not more affordably to buy in this particular brand, Maguiness noted that such Avida development has to go through careful planning to be able to come up with beautiful and practical features, without sacrificing the sustainability of the development. This is why all Avida developments are strictly placed at a premium zone strategically.

"It's right along the coastline and making sure every aspect or area is maximized. Otherwise, our landscape completely looks as if that the place that we put are indigenous to the area. One thoughtful planning is necessary in terms of infrastructure to make sure it's properly ventilated and illuminated," Maguiness explained.

To ensure affordable, quality living, Avida Land development knows that it would adhere to what it defined as the "five must haves" for every condominium and house and lot project.

• Reasonable locations. It is important for an Avida development to be in a strategic location, meaning it should be easy to reach, schools, business districts, churches and other related amenities, and easily accessible via public transport, to reduce the cost of time, and consequently, overall budget.

• Design. Beyond the basic, simple features and amenities, Avida Land offers a wide selection of lot sizes and house designs that will fit your needs. House and condo units are designed to allow cultural characteristics and variations that can reduce energy consumption. At the same time, Avida developments offer more open spaces for lot's play, landscaping and security areas.

• Quality. Buyers are attracted to high quality and durable structures as well as reliable, on-time delivery. Avida Land has created a warranty unit to quick reaction to customer needs and has also ensured the presence of strong village management to ensure proper maintenance and upkeep of all utilities and amenities.

• Buying experience. Avida Land offers a unique buying experience with its different, new payment scheme for any budget. It was the first developer to offer leasing and property management in the middle income segment.

• Living experience. All developments provide a closely-knit neighborhood with a great community that is vibrant, well-maintained, safe and peaceful, with 24/7 security. Buyers will continue to enjoy living. During activities even long after the launch and units have been sold out, giving it the good maintenance of AVIDA.

What we plan are really make it appropriate for the site, the local terrain, the local condition down to what's appropriate for the market of a particular community. It's all of these little details that make every Avida development sustainable. Maguiness explained, further adding that all these efforts Avida is undertaking a strong foundation for village management that provides great, safe and healthy.

Avida Settings MIMIL features the green village layout, giving residents an immediate access to the open space surrounding their houses.

Amaia Land: Ideal for first-time home buyers

A truly viable solution has helped the achievement of Amaia Land.

Offering houses and condo units at more affordable rates of P100,000 to P1.5 million, Avida Land is pleased that quality, it is successful in catering the living standards of the majority of working class Filipinos, more than working class overseas Filipino workers. Granted, it is the first time it has been for Filipinos belonging to the country's second largest social segment.

Amaia Land is not only a major contributor to Avida Land's bottom-line targets to date, it is also more importantly, a key driver in enhancing the company's market value of enhancing land and working with for more people.

According to Amaia president Mark Nolasco, the brand is now present in six locations.

"This year we are adding 17 new locations to the Amaia portfolio, and you'll find our units, and are going into 62 locations. With the vision of expanding its geographic footprint, Amaia Land is looking forward to Avida Land's brand to cater more geographic segments in the traditional strong areas such as Makati, Alibon and Cebu, thereby enabling more people to have quality and affordable homes, for it is, however, not to a condominium unit," Nolasco explained. And what differentiates Amaia from this traditional market sector, according to Nolasco, is the element of quality that Amaia Land provides.

Amaia Skies boasts of its "green wall" in its condominium facade — a sustainable feature that ensures heat reduction for the podium area.

And this quality is clearly evident in the development's sustainable features, such as the "Amaia Skies" concept which is one of the highlights of Amaia's house and lot projects. The Amaia Skies concept means that open spaces are evenly distributed throughout the development to provide better air quality and circulation.

Another sustainable design feature is the deliberate choice of light-colored paint for its houses, so as to minimize heat, thereby reducing electricity consumption. For its condominiums, Amaia Skies' open areas place greenery, while Amaia Skies uses "green walls" for its facade to reduce heat gain in the podium areas.

Beyond all these features, what truly sets Amaia apart is the living experience that homeowners will enjoy, according to Nolasco.

"The living experience is a major consideration in the Amaia Skies unit because in this segment," Nolasco said, "you're left to fend for yourself. But with Amaia, however, we are assured that they will get the same level of village management that Amaia Land is known for. The living experience with our Amaia property is never compromised."

Amaia Skies puts green walls in its podium area to reduce heat gain and ensure better air quality.

BellaVita: Quality homes for more Pinoys

The life and youngest residential brand of Ayala Land has taken the concept of quality and sustainable living to a new level. BellaVita, which could be the largest brand in its portfolio over the next 10 years, marks its commitment to Ayala Land to create quality and sustainable living for more Pinoys.

Simple yet, BellaVita projects will show a new style of development among future buyers, by providing them with a simple lifestyle, such as putting up a well-ventilated and providing an outdoor garden, vegetable garden like

At BellaVita, modern single houses and townhouses of the International Business Center are given the opportunity of experiencing the pride of owning a home.

Every BellaVita development will embody Ayala Land's focus on sustainable living and commitment to provide a "Better Days, Better Future."

A concrete example of how BellaVita can achieve such, according to Ayala Land, is by giving them a space for outdoor and indoor opportunities that will allow future homeowners to set up small enterprises—a small cottage that is useful, if not at all, years or other communities. And because, the first BellaVita development being put up in Alabang, the Philippines will provide a family garden, 7.7 hectares of land at the locality of the community, ready to house the entirety of the region. Consequently, the concept of allocating a space for businesses to flourish would allow jobs to be generated and for people to earn, thus improving their living standards, inevitably the whole community benefits from the robust economic activities—no matter how small it may be—within the neighborhood. Ayala Land is already in the process of doing so.

For the past three years, Ayala Land is trying to launch three to four BellaVita developments. By 2015, the company is hoping to launch up projects in a bid to be a bigger and more vibrant market. However, quality matters. Despite the fact that the company is still testing the viability of the model being applied to the BellaVita developments.

Thus, through all these five residential brands, Ayala Land has once again set the benchmark that other players in the property industry should emulate, as it holds steadfast in its belief that putting up sustainable communities is the key for a country to move forward.

But more than just putting up sustainable communities, a more crucial factor to achieving sustainability—as Ayala Land has demonstrated over decades—is the integration and synergy across its five brands, as all Ayala Land developments are driven and guided by common, clear-cut objectives, thus fostering community engagements that cut across all demographics. And thus enough, this had propelled Ayala Land to be a cut above the rest, as it continues to break barriers and go beyond norms to provide every Filipino sustainable living conditions that are crucial to building the nation.

Appreciating Earth.

Within Ayala Westgrove Heights, neighbors are more than friends, they're allies in sustainability.

Residents of Ayala Westgrove Heights don't just enjoy co-existing with each other, they learn to co-exist with nature as well. Residents practice segregation, which minimizes residual waste and composting, which produces fertilizer for the community's gardening needs. The neighborhood takes pride in a diverse population of birds, a true sign of a healthy environment. Bringing nature and sustainable practices closer to home ensures that Ayala Land is investing in a long life on Earth.

Put an end to bill shyness with the Sun Anti-Bill Shock plans

Shyness isn't always happy. In fact, it can be a source of stress, and you won't want to experience that. For instance, those emergency telephone bills that arrive when you're out of town, or those bills that arrive when you're out of town, or those bills that arrive when you're out of town.

Exhausting and time-consuming. But, a little bit of planning can go a long way. For instance, if you're out of town, you can call your provider and let them know. Or, you can call your provider and let them know. Or, you can call your provider and let them know.
